Introduction: The semester project for ICSI-418 consists of a base level of required functionality that can be implemented using one of several development platforms. There is one platform that is required for implementation that one team will be responsible for. More on the platforms below. This project will be the final for the course and must be complete by the date indicated above

Description: Build a blackboard-like app to be used for students to log in and take their tests assigned to them by administrators who can add tests that get self-graded.
